Master Class

“Mentoring and Coaching in HealthCare”

Course description

This programme is aimed at healthcare leaders, supervisors and health professionals, social scientists, who want to develop their skills, knowledge and understanding in this rapidly developing field. Healthcare leaders may be seeking to use a coaching approach within their unit or department, looking to build a coaching culture within their organisation to enhance performance or even embark on a second career as a professional freelance coach, mentor, consultant, and trainer.

About this Master Class

The class will examine how health professionals and healthcare leaders can best utilize the evidence from mentoring and coaching to work with an individual in the context of their organisational system. We draw on theories and case studies, and examine individual and organisational psychology. The class will involve facilitated group discussions and experiential activity, feedback on your skills practice and case studies.
